

The New International Property Measurement Standards: What do they mean for me?

Toronto Real Estate Leaders Event 2015

Friday June 19, 2015

Date: Friday June 19, 2015

7:30am Registration, hot buffet
breakfast and networking
8:30am Panel discussion, Q&A
10:00am Conclusion

Venue: Toronto Board of Trade

1 First Canadian Place
4th Floor, East Ballroom
Toronto, ON M5X 1C1

Panelists will include:

Michael Brooks FRICS, CEO, REALpac

Ken Creighton, Director of Professional
Standards, RICS

Randal Froebelius, Chair, BOMA Canada

Scott Chandler FRICS, President & CEO,
Cushman & Wakefield

Colin Johnston FRICS, President – Research,
Valuation & Advisory, Altus Group

RSVP: Register Now

BOMA Toronto, REALpac and RICS, invite you to attend a special leaders presentation on the new measurement standards shaping the real estate industry for investors, occupiers and service providers.

The recently launched International Property Measurement Standards for Office Buildings are a result of collaboration between more than 60 professional associations from around the world, including BOMA International, BOMA Canada, BOMA Toronto, REALpac, RICS, CoreNet, IREM, IFMA and many others. The new standards will help drive consistency and transparency, delivering clearer information to the investor and occupier.

The panel will address:

- What the standards do and do not cover
- How the standards will be used increasingly across the industry and interface with existing standards
- The impact of using the new standards on real estate portfolios
- Why using IPMS is a no-brainer

To learn more about the International Property Measurement Standards go to www.ipmsc.org